ON TV:

YES Docu is bringing us some of the latest and best documentary films in December. Many of them will be focused on body image, such as the film מקומות (Straight/Curve: Redefining Body Image) which will air on Friday, December 29, 22:00, or the film גוף של נרבי (OMG: My Barbie Body) which will air on December 28, 22:00. Another great watch is the series סיפורים מהקצה (Rolling Stone Magazine: Stories from the Edge), which will air on Mondays, 22:00, starting on December 18, and will tell the story of the ground-breaking American magazine.

The National Geographic Channel is also airing a most interesting documentary series on December 2-16, Saturdays, 21:00. Dian Fossey: Secrets in the Mist (דיאן פוסי - סודות בערפל) tells the story of the great primatologist who left America to study gorillas in Rwanda. She fought to save them, and that fight cost her her life. Her murder is still a mystery to this day, but the 3-episode series will tell us about her life and work, and how it still affects the lives of the mountain gorillas in Central Africa today.
